Inviting Builth Male Voice Choir to be part of your wedding celebrations will help to make your day a really memorable event.

We have an extensive repertoire of music to sing before or during the service, and can augment the congregational singing of hymns. We can also sing during the signing of the register or provide a triumphal soundtrack to your procession up the aisle. We are happy to discuss repertoire and fee with the bride and groom and invite you to contact us (details below)

Weddings

Let us help you create the perfect musical atmosphere for your Special Day

Your wedding

Builth Male Voice Choir has sung at many weddings over the years and takes great pride in being part of this special day.

The Choir is often asked to sing for twenty minutes or so before a wedding service, sometimes singing during the bridal procession, when the register is being signed and when the bride and groom leave the service. Alternatively you might like the Choir to sing at your reception. Wherever possible the Choir endeavours to provide a programme of music to satisfy individual requirements.

Prior to your wedding we always encourage the prospective bride and groom to attend one of our rehearsals in order to listen to the choir and to engage in a discussion on the various options available.

A traditional male voice choir taking part in a wedding service can be the catalyst that brings confidence to the congregation to join in with the hymn singing.

Our music team has a wealth of experience arranging music for weddings in both religious and civic settings and we invite you to contact us to discuss options available. (see contact detail over page)
